

Business impact analysis (BIA)

Create a business impact analysis and recovery strategies for your site in 4 days

Get it done

This service allows you to facilitate a BCM program introduction, collect the initial data required to complete Business Impact Analyses for your company, and develop recovery strategies to recover the site following a disruption. During the four-day site visit, we will engage participants through interactive workshops that educate your team members and compile critical process, related dependency information, and subsequent strategies to recover the critical processes identified.

Here is what you get.

- Two BIA education and data collection workshops
- Two recovery strategy development workshops
- Presentation decks and scripts
- Templates and activity materials

Results

A foundation for resiliency, standardized materials for your team, and a consistent approach for building a BCM Program at your company. Your site will have preliminary BIAs for all departments involved in the workshops, as well as strategies that the site can implement to recover from a disruption to the site.

All materials and presentations used in these workshops have been standardized for all engagements and industries. Customization is available for an additional cost.

Your time commitment

Program sponsors will be needed for all five days. Department coordinators responsible for completing a Business Impact Analysis for their department will need to attend one 3-hour BIA workshop during the site visit. Then they will attend one 3-hour Strategy workshop after providing critical BIA data.
